Creating Interactive Multi-Media Teaching Materials Workshop

In conjunction with 2015 Public Management Research Conference

Join the Hubert Project for an engaging day-long workshop on how to build interactive teaching materials using our well-developed process for e-cases, e-studies or video briefs. Topics covered will include:

- Research regarding the of teaching and learning and what it means for the current public affairs and nonprofit classroom
- Use of material overviews
- Creating blueprints to express content and plan use of multimedia assets
- Strength of limitations of video, audio, visual, enhanced power points, and pdf assets.
- Peer review processes
- Publishing and promoting materials.

Trainers:

- Jodi Sandfort (MSW, PhD), Associate Professor and Departmental Chair, Humphrey School of Public Affairs; Academic Director – Hubert Project
- Leah Lundquist (MPP), Operations Director – Hubert Project
- Kate Conners (MaED), Technology Enhanced Learning Coordinator, Humphrey School of Public Affairs

When: June 10th, 2015, 8 – 5:00 pm

Where: Humphrey School of Public Affairs, 301 19th Ave S, Minneapolis, MN 55455

Fee: $150, includes light breakfast, lunch, snacks and materials.

Scholarships available for researchers focused on human service delivery, nonprofit management or community based-leadership and interested in authoring interactive learning materials to be shared globally through the Hubert Project collection.

To learn more and register, contact info@hubertproject.org.